THE ARAGON TO PROCEED TO SEA

Expected that She Will Sail this Morning for Port Inglis, Repairs Having Been Completed.

The big British steamer Crown of Aragon, which put into this port last week in distress, will proceed to sea this morning.

The steamer was leaking badly when she reached this port, having sprung a leak when off Cuba, caused by running on a coral reef in a Cuban harbor while proceeding outbound for Port Inglis.

Several of the plates of the steamer were sprung, and the owners thinking that docking would be necessary, ordered her to proceed here on account of the presence here of the Spanish naval dock. When she reached here, however, and the board of surveyors had made a survey of the damage it was decided that the work could be done without docking, which was the case, the contract being awarded to local parties.

This work was completed yesterday and after the surveyor for Lloyd's, Captain Jacob Kryger, and the board, had pronounced the ship seaworthy, she began preparations to proceed.

She goes from here to Port Inglis for 3,500 tons of phosphate rock, and from there to New Orleans for balance of cargo.

LIFE IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Some of the Delights of Camping Out in the Rockies.

About dusk you straggle in with trout or game. The camp keeper lays aside his mending or his repairing or his notebook and stirs up the cooking fire. The smell of broiling and frying and boiling arises in the air. By the dancing flame of the campfire you eat your third dinner for the day—in the mountains all meals are dinners, and formidable ones at that. The curtain of blackness is drawn down close. Through it shine stars, loom mountains cold and mistlike in the moon. You tell stories; you smoke pipes. After a time the pleasant chill creeps down from the eternal snows. Some one throws another handful of pine cones on the fire. Sleepily you prepare for bed. The pine cones flare up, throwing their light in your eyes. You turn over and wrap the soft woolen blanket close about your chin. You wink drowsily, and at once you are asleep. Late in the night you awaken to find your nose as cold as a dog's. You open one eye. A few coals mark where the fire has been. The night mountains have drawn nearer; they seem to bend over you in silent contemplation. The moon is sailing high in the heavens. With a sigh you draw the canvas tarpaulin over your head. Instantly it is morning.—From "The Mountains," by S. E. White.

GAMBLING IS VULGAR.

It is an Irrational and Ignorant Struggle for Money.

All gambling is vulgar. Call it what you will, assign for it whatever motive you please, it is an irrational, an ignoble struggle for money.

Money got for nothing on the turning of a card or the revolution of a wheel bringeth good to no man, not even to him who wins it. And to him that loseth? Sometimes perdition, often, very often, that sinking sensation, that tired feeling, even where the value loss is immaterial, which follows futile effort and says as plain as whisper in the ear, "The world's against you."

Gambling, like everything else, is relative. The sin lies in the overplay, with its collateral vices, chief among them improvidence. The reigning sovereign, who has only his money to lose, and plenty of that, is not to be classed with the banker or the banker's confidential clerk or secretary, who has everything at stake, character included, though each plays for the same end—that is, the diversion and excitement. Asked what was the greatest pleasure in life, Fox said, "Winning at cards." There was a gambler for the love of it, and yet Fox played never for high stakes after he was forty. If he played at all—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Bad Place to Get Sick.

In his book, "Egads and Its Peoples," J. F. Chamberlain tells of a curious manner of treating the sick among a certain native African tribe: "When a person fell ill the village prophet was called in. He said at once whether the sick person would recover or not. If he was doomed to die he was allowed to fulfill the prophecy; if he was to live there was no need of medical aid." Another strange custom is explained in the words of the native who when asked by the author why women were not allowed to eat the flesh of goats replied, "There is no why; it is the custom."

Dumley Bewildered.

Dumley—I never saw a man like Brixton to drift away from the subject under discussion. Brixton—As, for instance? Dumley—I just asked him what he was doing the night I saw him down the road, and he evaded an answer by remarking that he had known people to get rich by attending to their own business. I have no doubt he has, but why should he mention it at that time?—Boston Transcript.

REVENUE CUTTER PATROLLING COAST

Reached Here Yesterday and Will Be on Duty Off Pensacola Bar.

The revenue cutter Hamilton, one of the largest cutters in the service in the south, is now in Pensacola harbor, having dropped anchor off Barcelona street wharf yesterday morning.

The cutter, which is in command of Captain Hanks, has headquarters at Tampa, but has been sent here to do quarantine duty, and will inspect the coast between Pensacola bar and Perdido, as long as the yellow fever exists in New Orleans. Her being assigned to duty here is the result of the request recently made that a watch be kept for any small boats that might enter the harbor from the infected port.

The cutter Forward is also in this service, and is guarding Mobile and the coast in that vicinity. The Hamilton will remain in Pensacola harbor for a few days, as her boilers are in bad condition and in need of repairs.

JUST EIGHT YEARS APART.

Odd Fact Regarding the Ages of Five Successive Presidents.

John Adams was eight years older than his successor, Jefferson; Jefferson was eight years older than his successor, Madison; Madison was eight years older than his successor, Monroe; and Monroe was eight years older than his successor, John Quincy Adams.

Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe ended their terms each in the sixty-sixth year of his age. John Adams, Jefferson and Monroe ended their days on the Fourth of July, the two former dying within a few hours of each other, just half a century after the Declaration of Independence.

John Adams lived to be ninety years and eight months old, while Garfield died at the middle age of forty-nine years and ten months. Jefferson, Madison and John Quincy Adams lived to be octogenarians; Monroe, Jackson, Van Buren, Tyler, Fillmore and Buchanan got well into the seventies, and Washington, William Henry Harrison, Taylor, Pierce, Johnson and Grant only reached into the sixties. Polk died at the age of fifty-three years and Lincoln and Arthur at fifty-six.—Washington Post.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MISS D. COWLEY

Expired Last Night at Home of E. P. Roch on East Government Street.

Miss D. Cowley, a resident of Mobile, but who has been the guest of Mrs. E. P. Roch at her home on East Government street for the past month, expired suddenly last night about 7:30 o'clock. Death was very sudden and unexpected.

Miss Cowley had been in ill health for some weeks, but the illness was not considered serious. Last night she dressed and was preparing to accompany her niece, Mrs. E. P. Roch, out to a concert, when she was taken suddenly ill.

At the time she was taken ill Miss Cowley was seated on the front veranda. She was quickly taken into a room and a physician and priest summoned. She expired, however, within fifteen minutes.

The deceased has a number of relatives in Mobile, among whom is John Cowley, who has been notified by wire, and will probably reach here this morning. She was 47 years of age.

A CURIOUS ANIMAL.

The Sea Cucumber Can Part With and Replace Its Organs.

Among the curious animals which inhabit the sea may take the holothuria, or sea cucumber, so called from its resemblance to the cucumber. When this animal is attacked by an enemy it does not stand up and fight, but by a sudden movement it ejects its teeth, stomach, digestive apparatus and nearly all its intestines and then shrivels its body up to almost nothing. When, however, the danger is past, the animal commences to replace the organs which it has voluntarily parted with, and in a short time the animal is as perfect as ever it was.

Dr. Johnstone kept one in water for a long time, and one day he forgot to change the water. The creature in consequence ejected its intestines and shrivelled up, but when the water was changed all its organs were reproduced. Although the animal is not eaten in Europe, it is a favorite with the Chinese, and the fishing forms an important part of the industry of the east. Thousands of junks are annually used in fishing for trepang, as the animals are called.—London Tit-Bits.

THE SOCIAL CLIMBERS.

Ever Dissatisfied Even When They Reach the Pinnacle.

In New York the dissatisfied man or woman who has achieved the full round of society and discovered its utter vanity, if not indeed worse, may imagine if not familiar with London and Paris that in those cities exists a superior class of men and women, more intellectual and less brutal than those of whom he knows. The Chicagoan unfamiliar with New York hopes to discover in Manhattan something different from that which is to be found in the western city. The resident of Omaha perhaps thinks that if she could attain Chicago she would find her ideal society. In Hastings, Neb., doubtless there are very many who think it would be a heaven to attain social prominence in Omaha. And out on the prairie are scattered hamlets in which many mothers look toward Hastings as a social Mecca. It all reminds one of the translation of Omar's lines: "Till on the stilly top of heaven's stair clear eyed I looked—and laughed—and climbed no more."—John Brisson Walker in Cosmopolitan.

Won His Bet.

A hotel proprietor in Baltimore tells an amusing story, in which the main figure is an old gentleman well known to the waiters in the hotels of the Monumental City for his aversion to the tipping system.

One evening the old gentleman, having finished his dinner, was preparing to leave the hotel when the darky who had served him bowed and said, "Thank you very much, sah."

"What the deuce are you thanking me for?" angrily demanded the old fellow. "I haven't given you anything."

"Dat's jest it, boss," responded the waiter. "I bet No. 10 50 cents dat you wouldn't tip me."—Harper's Weekly.

Rembrandt and Murillo.

Through the eighteenth century Dutch painters, like those of other countries, turned to Italy for inspiration. Rembrandt's marvels of light were forgotten or condemned by ignorant critics, his portraits, that search into the souls of his subjects, despised for their "laborious, ignorant diligence." He was neglected, while Murillo continued to be abundantly admired. Now, however, Murillo is esteemed less highly, and Rembrandt has been restored to his place among the giants.—St. Nicholas.

Falling Hair.

Hair nearly always begins to fall in one of two places—at the temples and where it is parted. If a new parting is given, the old one will be afforded a chance of recovering itself, provided, of course, that proper measures be employed. The chief reason for hair falling out where it is parted seems to be the strain that is brought to bear by comb and brush.

THE PENSACOLA CLASSICAL SCHOOL
OPINION OF EDUCATORS AS TO ITS WORK.

Prof. Walter Miller, professor of Greek in Tulane University, after visiting the classical school, wrote the following unsolicited opinion to a friend and colleague:
"The Pensacola Classical School is doing a splendid work for the cause of southern education. It is established upon broad principles, it cherishes the highest ideals of scholarship; it maintains a high standard of excellence; and by the best modern methods and equipment it secures thoroughness of training comparable with that afforded by the great fitting schools of the east. To my mind the Pensacola Classical School is one of the very best secondary schools of the south."

Dr. Venable, president of the University of North Carolina, writes: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the thoroughness of the preparation of the students who have come from your school to the university. We should be glad to have more of the same type."
Dr. Geo. Petrie, professor of Latin and History in the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, writes: "I consider the Pensacola Classical School one of the best fitting schools in this section of the south. I can confidently endorse the thoroughness of its work and the healthy, manly atmosphere that pervades the institution."
